1. Introduction

In the face of escalating environmental challenges, the concept of green buildings has gained significant recognition as a crucial element of sustainable development. Green buildings, also known as sustainable or environmentally friendly buildings, are designed and constructed with a primary focus on minimizing their environmental impact while promoting occupant health and well-being.

The overarching goal of green buildings is to achieve a harmonious balance between the built environment and the natural world. These buildings incorporate innovative design, construction, and operation strategies that prioritize energy efficiency, water conservation, sustainable materials, and improved indoor environmental quality.

Energy efficiency stands as a cornerstone of green buildings. By integrating advanced technologies and design principles, such as efficient insulation, high-performance windows, and energy-efficient lighting and appliances, green buildings minimize energy consumption and reduce reliance on fossil fuels. This not only helps combat climate change by lowering greenhouse gas emissions but also contributes to cost savings for building owners and occupants.

Water conservation is another critical aspect of green buildings. Through the incorporation of water-efficient fixtures, rainwater harvesting systems, and advanced water management techniques, these buildings reduce water consumption, alleviate pressure on strained water resources, and lower operational costs.

Indoor environmental quality is a key consideration in green building design. Strategies such as proper ventilation, access to natural light, and the use of non-toxic building materials enhance occupant health, comfort, and productivity. Green buildings create healthier indoor environments by minimizing the presence of pollutants and promoting optimal thermal and acoustic conditions.

In conclusion, green buildings are at the forefront of sustainable development of building sector in India by emphasizing energy efficiency, water conservation, sustainable materials, and indoor environmental quality.

2. Green Building Certification Agencies in India

In India, there are several green building certification agencies that offer certifications and rating systems for sustainable buildings. Each agency may have its specific criteria, rating systems, and certification processes. Some prominent agencies, which provides green building certification are listed below:

1. GRIHA:

GRIHA is an acronym for “Green Rating for Integrated Habitat Assessment”. GRIHA is a Sanskrit word meaning – ‘Abode’. GRIHA attempts to minimize a building’s resource consumption, waste generation, and overall ecological impact to within certain nationally acceptable limits / benchmarks. GRIHA is a rating tool that helps people assesses the performance of their building against certain nationally acceptable benchmarks.

2. IGBC: The Indian Green Building Council (IGBC), part of the Confederation of Indian Industry (CII) was formed in the year 2001. The vision of the council is, "To enable a sustainable built environment for all and facilitate India to be one of the global leaders in the sustainable built environment by 2025". The council offers a wide array of services which include developing new green building rating programmes, certification services and green building training programmes.

3. LEED: LEED India is a green building rating system that helps to guide and design high-performance commercial buildings in India. the Green Building Certification Institute (GBCI) manages certification of projects to all LEED ratings systems in India,

4. ASSOCHAM: The Associated Chambers of Commerce & Industry of India (ASSOCHAM) is the country's oldest apex chamber. In order to complement in India’s Sustainability Movement and take it to the next level, ASSOCHAM has launched the “GEM Sustainability (Green) Certification Program” with the objective to promote environment friendly green building design and construction.
